Dedicatory Services of the New Building-A Large Gathering-Addresses and Singing.

Bt. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church was browded yesterday atternoon by a large cong regation which had assembled to participate in the dedicatory services of the Sunday s chool building. The children of this Sundayschool, and of the Wentworth street Lutheran and German Lutheran Sunday-schools, occupled the central portion of the church and galleries, while the regular congregation, with numerous visitors, filled up every other available space. Occupying the rows of short pews on either side of the chancel were the members of the Lutheran Synod of the Southern States now in session in this olty, and several visiting clergymen. Within the chancel were the Rev. Messrs. D. H. Bittle, D. D., of Savannah, S. A. Repass, W. S. Beaman, J. B. Davis and J. H. Honour, and Mr. B. G. Chisolm, the courteous and efficient superintendent for many years past of the sunday-scool of this church. Just in front of the chancel, in the middle aisle, was the wellknown easy chair, upon which half reclined the venerable Dr. John Bachman, who had come forth once more at this propitious time, to take part in the general rejoicing.

The exercises were opened by the singing of the chant "Benedicite omnia opera Domini," in which all of the children joined, with a correctness and sweetness which was surprising in so large an assemblage. The sluging was led by Mrs. Dingle, who presided at the organ, and three Sunday-schools executed the several hymns in a most creditable manner. Rev. J. B. Davis offered a prayer, after which Superintendent Chisolm read the first lesson for the day, taken from Deuteronomy xxxi, 9-13. All present then united in re peating the commandments, after which the second lesson for the day was read from the Gospel of St. Luke II, 41-47 verses. Tae creed of the Lutheran Church was next repeated aloud by the children and congregation, followed by the Joyous hymn, "Come join our

An address on the 'Sunday-school," pre pared, by request, by Mr. E. A. Winyard, of Walhalla College, one of the beneficiaries of this Sunday-school, was then read by Mr. John F. Ficken, a teacher of the school. Another hymn, "Good Shepherd grant Thy blessing," was sung, after which Superintendent Chisolm introduced Dr. D. H. Bittle, who delivered an instructive and interesting address on

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHER. Christ, he said, had taught us to pray "Thy kingdom come." That kingdom hath been established in the teeth of Satan, and while we prayed for it to come, we should also prepare ourselves and others for it. In another place we are told to pray that the Lord send laborers into His vineyard. Whatever might be our various qualifications, each of us could do something in this vineyard. The duties, were manifold, requiring different hands and qualifies, and each of us was called upon to do his part to obtain, the promised reward. In the New Testament there were three words used to designate teachers. The pare ourselves and others for it. In anothe three words used to designate teachers. The first means literally a teacher by authority, and in one place is applied even into the Saviour himself. The second word means a catechist, or those sent forth to instruct persons of maor those sent forth to instruct persons of maturer age. The third is singularly applicable to our present teachers, and means teachers of children. You, teachers, belong to this last denomination. In the second century, a school was organized at Alexandria, where young men could be instructed in the principles of Christianity, and sent forth to preach and defend the faith against the attacks of a heisis, &c. In the teath century new schools were organized, the tenth century new schools were organized, and the degree of D. D. for the first time conferred. In the days of the Reformation, Luther saw the great deficiency, and a little book sprang late existence—the Catechism—which was to be taught to all the children. Other was to be taught to all the children. Other creeds followed the example, until, under the impulse thus given, Sunday-schools were everywhere organized in aid of the church. You, friend teachers, are sacred officers of the church, and have a grave duty to You, friend teachers, are sacred officers of the church, and have a grave duty to perform. You cannot teach immortal minds without practicing what you teach. For your work plety, intelligence and a conscientious self-denial are necessary qualifications, and particularly a punctual attendance to your duties. The man who ploughs one day and sleeps the next will have but a short crop at the harvest. So your teaching one Sunday and missing the next will have but few sheaves to bind up in heaven. A close attendance upon your pastor is also necessary to enable you to learn the truths with which you are to answer doubting questions and intendance upon your pastor is also necessary to enable you to learn the truths with which you are to answer doubting questions and instruct the young. You must study, read, be diligent, and above all, you must bray. It is an earnest and serious work in which you are are engaged, and none can be successful without praying for themselves and the children under their care. The last man who signed the constitution of the Lutheran Church is still living. In 1818, he began teaching in the Sanday-school a class composed of six of the worst boys he could find—so had that he had frequently to st between two of them to prevent the pair from fighting in the church. He worked and succeeded, and every January he now receives six letters from his pupils to their loved Sunday-school teacher. Five of these letters came from working ministers, and one from a practicing physician, and old deorge. Shryock yet lives to testify to the truth of this.

Superintendent Chisolm next read a paper

Superintendent Chisolm next read a paper on charity, and this was followed by a gentle appeal from the Rev. W. S. Bowman, in behalf of the school, for funds to remove the balance of the debt incurred in furnishing the new building. This matter was handled in a quiet, practical manner, which provoked frequent smiles, and a collection was afterwards taken

p. The inspiring hymn, "We are Marching on," &c., was then sung, during which the children of the Sunday-schools formed a procession in the middle alsle and marched over to the new Sunday-school building! Its capacity was tested to the utmost as the hundreds of children came filing through the two entrances and filled the commodious pews. The ministers and members of the Synod also attended; and the congregation filled up the background by the doors, until not less than four hundred persons could have been within the building.

The Sunday-school edifice-a full description of which has already been given in THE NEWS -was tastefully dressed for the occasion. It is built in the shape of a perfect cross, the upright piece of which represents the main body of the building, the two wings being intersected for class-rooms devoted to the use of the intant and Bible classes, and shut off from the main body by large folding doors. These can at any time be thrown open, bringing the three rooms into one. The main room has four rows of neat pews, separated by three aisles, the central one of which is clear, while opposite every pew along the other two are handsome fixed revolving chairs for the use of the class teachers. Along the walls of the main rooms, at short intervals, were hung large bouquets of lovely spring flowers and roses of every hue and kind, from which a delicate fragrance was diffused through the building. The bouquets were most conningly made, and when the high and broad windows along the sides of the rooms were thrown open, the light, flowers and crowds of children made up a scene of surpassing animation and interest. The raised stand at the upper end of the building representing the head of the cross was, however, the cynosure of all eyes. The stand is semicircular in shape, and along the arching walls, between the deep windows, were hung exquisite wreaths of choice flowers and crosses curiously fashioned of small white flowers, son, the chairman, being detained at home by tus to the crops of every description.

the right of the stand was a handsome readraised a pyramid of beautiful fresh apring roses and other flowers, tastefully intermingled with moss and evergreen. Hanging baskets of shrubs and flowers also added to the attractive display, and gave a charming finish to the scene as they swung to and fro. in the soft western breezes rustling through the open windows.

A magnificent floral cross had been erected the upper end of the building was a gorgeous stand of flowers about seven feet high. The apex of the stand was adorned with white

As the children came in, they began the nymn, "Will come while yet all glowing," being accompanied by Miss Strobel on the new melodeon. The congregation then stood up, and the Rev. A. R. Rude read the service for the consecration of buildings to the Divine service. In conclusion, he offered up a fervent prayer, after which the whole assemblage joined in repeating the Lord's Prayer.

The consecrating hymn "O thou that hearest prayer," was then sung. This was followed by a congratulatory address by the Rev. D. M. Gilbert. The children lastly sung the hymn of dismission, "Lord dismiss us with thy blessing," every voice swelling the chorus until the hopeful words died away in the stillness of the evening. The Rev. J. P. Margart gave the benediction, and the school and its friends dispersed, congratulating each other upon the auspicious consummation of their pious undertaking.

THE MEDALS OF HONOR. The pupils in the first four classes who had gained premiums were specially examined last week in order that the medals of honor might be given to the most proficient pupil in the school. Upon the first examination of the girls the following were equal: Hattle Dowell, Nora Bresnihan, Kate Furlong, Virginia Follin and Septima Follin. Upon the second examination, Kate Furlong, Virginia Follin and Sentima Follin were equal. These three were again examined with a like result, and the three drew lots for the medal, which was gained by Septima Follin.

Upon the first examination of the boys for the medal of honor Wm. Casey and Charles McGaban were equal. A second examination was had, and the medal was awarded to Chas. McGaban.

THE MUSIC MEDAL.

For this silver medal, given for regularity of attendance and for attention at the weekly rehearsals, there were thirteen contestants of equal merit, viz: Fanny Furlong, Kate Furlong, Ellen Furlong, Lizzle Furlong, Alice Armstrong, Pauline Brance, Mary Dunning. Fanny Kinsey, Nora Bresnihan, H. R. Garety, C. McGahan, J., Williams and Theo. Albrecht. These cast lots, and the medal was won by Kate Furlong. The remaining pupils received small sliver medals and crucifixes.

The premiums being distributed, Master Leon St. Amand and Miss Marie Barbot came forward; the former bearing a massive silver goblet, and the latter a beautiful bouquer. These they presented to the superintendent of the school, Captain F. W. Dawson; a very graceful presentation speech being delivered by Master St. Amand. Captain Dawson heartlly thanked the teachers and the children for their kindness, and the pastor, the Rev. C. B. Northrep, announced that it was in contemplation to have a piculc next week for the sunday-school children of St. Mary's Church. He invited all the members of the congregation, who liked the idea, to confer with him, and expressed the hope that the piculc might be carried out successfully. The children of the church have never had a picule of their own, and their diligence and good behavior entitle them to a day of innocent merrymaking.

The children sung the hymn "Hall, Queen of Heaven," and the ceremonies, which passed off without a single centretemps, were closed by prayer. .

The General Committee of the State Sunday School Convention met at the hall of the chair. Mr. C. E. Chichester, of Columbia, S. the right of the stand was a handsome reading deak of black walnut, upon which was the Holy Bible, with its beautiful marker, resting upon a richly wrought velvet qualion the labor of love of several ladies of the congregation. On the other slag of the stand from the several contents. yates were already received, and suggested the necessity of securing a good secretary for the convention. Several excellent angers tions were made to the meeting by Mr. Chichester, among which the most important were the following: That a secretary, with two assistants, be appointed; that the sunday schools be requested to delegate little boys to act as pages in the convention; and that during the meeting of the convention each of the classes of superintendents, teachers, librarion the wall, between the entrances, and at ans, &c., should hold separate meetings, and, after a discussion of their several departments, make reports to the convention. Owing to the absence of the regular chairman, with the order of business, &c., little more could be done, and the meeting adjourned, to meet next Tuesday, at 8 o'clock P. M, at the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association.

M. BELLAIGUE DE BUGHAS.—It will be seen by the following paragraph from the Courier les Etats Unis, of the 9th instant, that this gentleman, who has deservedly so many warm friends in Charleston, has gained new honors in the larger field of duty to which he was called on leaving this city:

We learn that Mr. Bellaigue de Bughas will soon leave for New Orleans, to which post he has recently been appointed French consul. Short has been the stay of Mr. de Bugbas in New *York, but he will not be forgotten by his countrymen. In even this short stay he has earned for himself an enviable popularity; and it is no matter of surprise that the tact he and it is no matter of surprise that the tact he has displayed, under circumstances often critical, always delicate, should have been appreciated and appropriately rewarded by the government of the French Republic. We heartly congratulate our compatriots in New Orleans. France could have among them no worthler representative.

These are devoted to testing the manly strength and skill of the competitors, and some of them afford material for oceans of laughter. The dancing, games, and in fact every one of the amusements, are each under the management of excellent committees, and the whole picnic promises to go off in the most pleasant, novel and agreeable manner. For tickets see advertisement.

A WELCOME RAIN .- The city was visited last Saturday morning with a refreshing shower of rain, which had the happy effects of laying the dust upon our crowded thoroughfares and of stimulating the drooping crops throughout the neighborhood. The weather had been extremely dry, no rain of any consequence having fallen for several weeks, and vegetation of all kinds was commencing to suffer in consequence. The vegetables upon the truck farms in the vicinity of the city had shown the effect of the drought most noticeably, and certain kinds of farm produce were beginning to be scarce and dear in the city markets, while cotton and corn, although affected to a less extent, had THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION. Still shown some of the effects of the dry spell. The rain of Saturday, however, which was incessant during the early part of the day and which continued at intervals during the after-Young Men's Christian Association on Satur- noon, has remedied all this for the time being, day evening, at eight o'clock. Mr. S. A. Nel- and has given a marked and gratifying impe-

DEATH OF A FORMER CHARLESTONIAN .- Intelligence has been received of the death, by consumption, at Bath, England, on the 24th uit., of Ambrose Sutton, Esq., aged forty-four years. Mr. Sutton was partner at one time in the formerly well-known cotton house of our city, Christopher Atkinson & Co., and will be remembered as a resident prior to the late war. He had been travelling for the last two years in the hopes of restoring his failing health.

THEODORE D. CLANCY.—Saturday afternoon our community was shocked by the sudden death of this promising young merchant, at his establishment, No. 78 East Bay. About half-past five o'clock Mr. Clancy, while speaking to one of his clerks, coughed slightly and raised a little blood. Nothing, however, was thought of this, and he walked to the front of the store and sat down between two of his friends. While talking a moment after blood gushed from his mouth and nostrile, and he immediately lost all consciousness. His friends rendered him every assistance and called in medical aid quickly, but he died in. a few minutes without regaining his senses.

Mr. Clancy was a native Charlestonian, and had celebrated the thirty-third anniversary of his birth day but twenty days previous to this sad occurrence. He was reared and educated in this city, and at the breaking out of the war entered the Confederate service, and served for some time with distinction. Later he became an officer on one of the most noted blockade runners, and continued in this post till the end of the war. He then became a purser on the New York line of steamships until the year 1868, when he succeeded Messrs. Craig & Lockwood in the ship-chandlery business in the firm of T. D. Clancy & Co. He here continued until his sudden death on Saturday afternoon closed his eventful life.

Mr. Clancy, although young, was rapidly advancing in his business. His quiet manners and the well known firmness and manly traits of his character caused him to be respected and esteemed among his associates. In business circles, his integrity was fully appreclated, and among the seafaring men visiting this port his popularity attested the high esteem in which he was held.

His funeral took place yesterday afternoon at the Citadel Square Baptist Church, whence his remains were conveyed to and interred at Magnolia.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

At a regular monthly meeting of the Marion steam Fire Engine Company, held in their hall, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Again has death been in our midst, and re. moved from us one of our brother firemen, E. B. Doughty, one whose generous and unobtrusive manners always won the respect and love of the company. "For six years he has been identified as an active member of the company," though his occupation as a printer and his il health had debarred him from assisting in the fatigue duties of the company. The name of Marion was always his delight; the name was always in his heart and mind. Although unable to be with them in the discharge of their duties, he was much loved and respected by them. But the Almighty God, who doeth all things for the best, has seen it: to remove him from this world to far brighter and happier home. Therefore, be it Resolved, That we have lost a most kind and generous member.
Resolved, That a blank page in our Minute
